New Wuxal Foliar Nutrition Website Offers Easy Access to Crop Solutions Maximize Crop Performance with Detailed Product Recommendations

Waukegan, Illinois (July 6, 2011) – As the leader in specialized chemistries, Precision Laboratories has launched a new Wuxal Foliar Nutrition website to address specific nutrition-related crop issues. The latest tool from Precision Laboratories supports Wuxal's ability to boost yields by providing users with an online database to select crops and agronomic problems and receive recommended solutions.

When visiting the site, located at www.wuxalnutrition.com, visitors can select row or specialty crops to find a complete list of crops and problems, along with special offers. Once a crop and problem is determined, the website provides solutions based on product, application rate and specific application timing. With over 50 crops listed, and several problems for each crop, growers and applicators have a wide range of solutions to address their needs.

"We wanted to take Wuxal's already proven technology to the next stage by providing a database of solutions available anywhere with internet access," said Terry Culp, vice president of Seed Enhancement and Foliar Nutrition at Precision Laboratories. "The new website focuses on problems that growers face every year and our goal is to boost their bottom line by increasing yields with this convenient step-by-step process available on our new Wuxal-specific website."

"Precision Laboratories continues to provide information technology-based solutions to help retailers make the best recommendations and to help growers get the best results from their crop production inputs," said Rick Wohlner, president of Precision Laboratories. "Along with our Mix Tank app for iPhone and Water Logic website, both launched in 2011, we continue to couple our chemical technologies with information technologies in fulfilling our promise to offer more value to our customers."
